

Here are second year results from the same example organization after it implemented an objective evaluation tool. The organization grouped its goals under the five pillars of excellence, a model that Studer Group recommends its clients adopt in order to align and set organizational goals. Notice that the organization had a better operational performance than ever before.

